

How to Stay Up to Speed - Transcript

Tom Mullooly: In episode 214, we talk about all the ways that we can stay in contact together.

Welcome to the Mullooly Asset Show, this is episode number 214. 2/14 is Valentine's Day, so I want to share how we love you, guys, and that's with all the content that we put out on a weekly and monthly basis. We put up two videos just last Friday, and we'll link to them in the show notes. But that just brings along a quick reminder, we post all of our videos on our website, but also we post them on our YouTube channel. If you haven't subscribed to our YouTube channel, please do so now. I'll wait here while you do that. Feel free to leave comments, if you have a question or a comment. Also, if you like something, give it the thumbs-up on YouTube. We appreciate all the feedback that we can get.

We don't just do videos, we do podcasts as well. And our podcasts are posted on our website, we're now up to episode number 326. We do them just about every week, so you can tell how long we've been doing this. Now, we've learned that most podcast plays happen through websites. In fact, 60% of all podcast plays in the universe come right through... They go to someone's website, and they play it. However, our podcasts are also available on your cell phone or your iPad as well through Apple Podcasts. It used to be called iTunes. Personally, I like to play our own podcast back at one and a half speed, which I can do on my cell phone. I sound a lot better that way. But also on iTunes underneath the podcast, if you've subscribed, you can give it a thumbs-up or leave a comment or a question as well, and we encourage you to do so.

We post frequently on Twitter. Each of us have our own accounts on Twitter, including the company has a Twitter account. So follow us, join in the conversation that we have over on Twitter. You can join the conversation there or on Facebook as well. You should also know that we post articles on the company website on mullooly.net, along with more content that we write on our own at a couple of different websites. There's a site called Your Brain on Stocks, that's Brendan's personal website. My own website is jerseyshorefinancialadvisor.com. Tim's website is livingwithmoney.com, and we'll link to them in the show notes. You should definitely take a look at Tim's website, because he puts out a daily post called Tim's Top Links. If you want to cut through all the clutter and read what's important, start subscribing to Tim's Top Links.

Lastly, we send out a weekly roundup of all of the content that we have each week on Friday. If you're not getting this email, then please do sign up on our website, that's mullooly.net. There are a lot of people who want to know what our take is on the market right now. They want to know what's going on with the economy, and how we feel it's going to impact their investments. They want to stay in contact with us. It doesn't always have to be, "Come into the office and sit down for a meeting." That's been very hard to do for the last six months with the pandemic. But there's lots of ways that you can learn what's going on just by following us on social media and getting our emails and reading our blogs and podcasts.

We appreciate all the feedback that we've been getting from you. Please encourage your friends to also tune in into these different channels. That's going to wrap up episode 214, the love episode. We'll see you again real soon.
